JOHN CHINAMAN ABROAD.

It would be a bird's blunder to name a country in which the Chinese cannot settle down and make a living—indeed a compulsion for that matter. In all parts of America, from semi-tropical to ultra-fight regions there is John to be found at all kinds of work, from running a gambling house to cultivating vegetables. Even in London he has located himself and his little opium shops down the East End as well-known. Australia, however, is the place that has most attractions for the Celestials. The gold-fields of Victoria draw Chinese in thousands and when the Ballarat diggers threw up claims as worked out the almost red metal came along, fuscicled and washed dirt and got invariably enough of the yellow metal to make him fairly comfortable for the rest of his days. John has wonderful adaptability. In the old digging days several fortunes were made by Chinese as eating house keepers, and sketches of the "town" of those days bearing the legend "Wing Lee, Restaurant" or something of a like nature. In most of the suburbs around Melbourne there are many large tracts of ground occupied by Chinese for gardening purposes and to-day the vegetable supply of the "Oriental city of the South" is well nigh wholly dependent on "John." He comes along to the back door regularly, is civil and obliging and if the house-wife is "out of character" as how and then happens, John smiles blandly and says "Another time can do, ma'am. He is obliging to an extreme—e.g., it was a regular customer who wanted a candleholder. The Celestials had none. But he went on to a European shop, paid $1. for the vegetable and brought it back to his patron and sold it for $3. There was capital diplomacy in this little move.

Most folk who know Melbourne have visited Little Bourke street. This is the main habitat of Celestials in the City. It is a long dark and narrow thoroughfare with three and four storied houses on either side. The residents are merchants, cabinet makers, jewellers and so forth and it is a glimpse of China proper to take a walk down the street by daylight, so much of the orthodox Chinese costume, long coats, gaiters, white soled shoes, pork-pie hats and pig-tails being noted on all sides. At night the street resounds with the "music" of gongs, basins, trumpets and other instruments in which our friend finds delight. There are opium dens in Little Bourke St, and timid people tell all sorts of weird stories about the place. Few Australian novelists have left the street alone and many have made a regular Cut-throat Alley of it. However, the Chinese denizens are well behaved, rarely get on a "tear" and their cracked singing on festive days with a gambling episode now and then are their main delinquencies.

In Sydney the bulk of the Chinese business is confined to Lower George St. This street is what Queen's Road is to Hongkong and the past where our friends hold court is a small edition of the "Highway" in old days. It is just near Circular Quay where the mail boats and big sailing craft lie and there is a constant throng of sealing folk passing. The Chinese have shops of respectable size, some devoted to the sale of silk and cotton, others go for groceries, and then there are junk shops where old iron, copper, brass, iron or anything "old" is bought. Then too there are places with a few willow bananas or empty cigar boxes in the window. These are the fakans and pak-pu dens where many a wharf labourer has lost his week's wages and where many youths have been tempted to help themselves at the master's ill after a "bad night." In one of the purlins of Sydney in the Haymarket, called "World St., and also in Goulburn Street the gambling shops of Chinese are plentiful and opium smoking is carried on to a great extent. The worst feature of the latter vice is that so many European girls of the "unfortunate" class take to it. The Police and missionaries are constantly doing rescue work to save the poor cretins but once the habit has taken a hold all efforts seem to be hopeless. In a long police court experience in this quarter the writer has seen some heartrending sights. Girls 16 to 18 are brought up, thoroughly emaciated and barely able to speak, palid through the effects of the drug. Salvation Army women or other philanthropists took charge of them so that they should not be sent to a reformatory and often the wretched girls were brought up again on a further charge of vagrancy, the passion for the "smoke" allowing them again to the villes of Chinese dens, with all their incidental immorality. The gardener class of Chinese in New South Wales are steady hardworking men. By dint of toil night and day they have converted arid patches of land into fertile soil growing all descriptions of vegetables, and on the other hand they have drained swamps and marshes so well that now they have remarkably fine gardens. The Reservoir Bay garden is one in point. The big tracts of land at Waterloo and Botany also bear abundant testimony to John's diligence.

The gold business of course has come to the colored with the Chinese. It was not so very long ago that a gambler drew a ticket for a goodly sum in one of the Chinese lotteries. The gamblers refused to pay up and there was a row in which some of the gamblers' gold were injured. The man went to the police court and when the case was over the gamblers, who had a cast with weapons concealed thereon, outside the court again attacked the cabbage growers. An educated Chinese, belonging to Hongkong took up the part of the working men and brought their case under the notice of the Government. In consequence the gamblers' gold placed a price of £200 on his head. He had to go into hiding and the writer had the privilege of securing an interview with him while in retreat. He had a guard of twelve men with him night and day, but he certainly stood his critical situation very calmly and made light of the threats from the "other side."

Mr. Qong Tat, who is well-known in Hongkong has done much for the Chinese in New South Wales; his enlightened and progressive views are having a good effect on his countrymen and it was a very graceful act of appreciation they showed when they presented the names of Sydney Hospital with an expensive piano.

The desirability of Chinese as colonists is a moot question. Heavy restrictions are now in force in the Australian group regarding their entrance and it is as well after all, John Chinaman is not such a bad fellow but when he comes into competition with the European it is quite another matter, especially when wages and mode of living are concerned.

IMPERIAL DECREES.

PEKING, November 14th.

"THE ORTHODOX WAY."

I, the Empress Dowager Tz'u-hsi-chen-yu, etc., have received a memorial from the Ministers of the Board of Rites dilating on the supreme importance of making it known throughout the Empire that there are to be no changes from the old methods of literary examinations among candidates for degrees. In order to get at test, once for all the present uncertainty that has been caused by the Emperor's recent reform measures in that direction. Now, as the Empire has always profited and flourished under the old system and the methods of old, I, as aforesaid and sanctioned by the stated ancestors of our dynasty, have attained the acme of excellence, the is indeed no necessity for making any changes in the corporation of literary examinations hitherto obtaining; and I therefore grant the request of the said Board. The said Board of Rites is accordingly commanded to notify all the Literary Examiners and Literary Chancellors throughout this Empire to follow henceforth, carefully and reverently, all the old methods formerly apostolized, according to law, to the examinations of literary candidates for degrees, in order that the graduates thereof may all be of the uniform orthodox type as of old.

[We command this decree to those who contend that the Empress Dowager is really a friend of progress.—Ed.]

MONK SCHOOL TO BE PERMITTED.

The above-named Board further memorializes me asking that I put a stop to the new studies ordered to be taught in provincial colleges and that these institutions revert to their old habits of instructing solely in the study of the Confucian Analects and the Five Classics. Now the objects of colleges are institutions of learning to teach solid and substantial branches of studies and not solely for the instruction of old-time subjects. For instance, such subjects as astronomy, geography, military tactics, mathematics, etc., are modern requirements necessary for the country's welfare and as such within the province of students of literature to attain. Modern schools do not go beyond the instructions noted above and hence only differ in name from the present idea of collegiate instruction. They really have the same objects in view. In view of this, therefore, I see no reason for placing a stop to the combination of modern schools of instruction with the colleges of the various provinces of the empire, nor should it be claimed that modern studies of importance ought not to be taught in the said colleges. Let this, therefore, be made known to all throughout this empire.

NEW APPOINTMENTS.

Duke Tz'u-ku is appointed Senior Vice-Director of Civils at the Chung-kuang of the same.

PEKING, November 15th.

MORE ACTS OF GRACE.

The Grand Secretaries Li Hung-chang and Hui Tung are hereby granted the privilege of riding in two-bearer sedan chairs within the precincts of the Western Palace gates, as a mark of special grace.

WIRLIE MEASURES.

Tsai Chi, Prince of Tuan, 1st Order; Bang Yi, President of the Board of War; and Dukes Tsai Lan and Tsai Cho are hereby appointed a special commission to pick out a body of strong, healthy and well-built men from the various Banner Corps in the Capital, the three Banner Corps of the Imperial Household Department, and other Corps for the formation of a special brigade.

A NEW APPOINTMENT.

Hu Ch'ing-yao is appointed Senior Vice-President of the Board of Establishments; his former office of acting Senior Vice-Director of the Board of Rites is hereby given to the Sub-Chancellor of the Grand Secretariat Kao Pao-hua to act pro tem.

A PROGRESSIVE SPIRIT.

In my anxiety to benefit my Empire and knowing that in military, agricultural, mechanical, and commercial matters foreign countries are superior to ours in that they succeed in strengthening and enriching their respective countries, I, the Empress Dowager Tz'u-hsi-chen-yu, etc., desire that such portions of the above branches as may be useful to China may be selected and copied by us and success will follow our efforts.

SCOTT'S Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites, is more reliable as an agent in the cure of Consumption, Bright's Disease and General Debility, than any other remedy known to medical science. Read the following—I have prescribed SCOTT'S Emulsion and have also taken it myself, and can fully endorse the opinion that it is both palatable and efficient, and can be tolerated by almost any one—especially where Cod Liver Oil itself cannot be taken.

DISRAELI'S AMBITION.

The late Lord Beaconsfield had a two-sided nature. When plain Mr. Disraeli drew a ticket for a goodly sum in one of the Chinese lotteries, he was noted for "love of tinsel, glitter, and flamboyance" and for "delighting in fine dishes." He was also noted for his mental cleverness and for a certain audacious frankness as to aims and hopes in life, which were high.

The Hon. Grant Duff mentions in his "Diary" that at Lord Melbourne's, Mr. Norton introduced Disraeli to the Prime Minister.

"I am glad to meet you, Mr. Disraeli," said Lord Melbourne. "I hear you're a very clever young man. What's your ambition?"

"To be Prime Minister of England, my lord," said the frank young man, answered.

The size, good-natured statesman, who had wept most things of public life and did not think "her metal worth the cloak it made," must have been amazed at the ingenuousness of the grandly dressed youth; but in less than 30 years from that interview Disraeli had realized his ambition.

Some time after Disraeli became Prime Minister, when Grant Duff, his old travelling companion, Clay, the great whist-player, met him somewhere about the House of Commons and said to him,

"Well, Disraeli, when you and I travelled together years ago, who would ever have thought that you would be Prime Minister?"

"Who, indeed?" said Disraeli. "But, as they used to say when we were to the East, 'God is great,' and now He is greater than ever."

Undoubtedly the remark clashes against our reverence, but Disraeli probably did not mean to utter an irreverent epigram. He believed in God, "one God, and that God a mighty God," and in "the chosen race—the only race to which God has ever spoken" —we quote his own words. He was the only man of the "chosen people" who had ever become Prime Minister of Great Britain.
